China Landing at Gallery

China Landing, a model made by artist Michael C. McMillen, is one of a number of works on display at the Gallery in their Locations show through Nov. 4. The show's focus is on Southern California, in a basically post-

Houseman visits Sunday

John Houseman, who won an Academy Award for his portrayal of the stern, uncompromising Prof. Kingsfield in 'The Paper Chase,' will speak here Sunday at 2:30 p.m.

The free lecture, entitled, 'From the Mercury Theatre to the Paper Chase,' will be held on the Commons patio. The audience is invited to bring blankets and lawn chairs for this outdoor event, although some chairs will be available on a first-come basis. A reception for Houseman, also on the patio, will follow the lecture.

A luncheon with Houseman will be held in the Commons preceding the speech. Tickets, $7.50 apiece, are available through the college president's office and may be purchased no later than today. Luncheon entrees include turkey and salmon, as well as four types of salad. Attendees will have reserved chairs for the outdoor speech.

Born in Bucharest and educated in England, Houseman began his extensive career in theatre, movies and television with his direction of 'Four Saints in Three Acts,' in 1934. He and Orson Welles founded the Mercury Theatre, where some of the most innovative productions of the 1930s were performed.

At the age of 70, Houseman added acting to his other careers with his part in the movie, 'The Paper Chase.' He continued his role as Professor Kingsfield in the critically acclaimed television series of the same name.

Since that time he has appeared in numerous other motion pictures, television programs and commercials, including the Smith-Barney ads he always ends by saying, 'they make money the old-fashioned way. They earn it.' On PBS he was seen in 'The Adams Chronicles,' and Hollywood Television Theatre's 'Six Characters in Search of an Author.'

Through the years, Houseman has founded seven theatre companies and headed the Julliard School of Drama for more than ten years. He is currently a scholar-in-residents at USC's Annenberg School of Communications and director of The Acting Company.

Costs to students may rise

Brown axes CSUC budget

By Mike Heister
and Pauline Barbour

California Governor Jerry Brown's mandated two percent cut in state spending in each state agency is already having its affect on-campus, according Cal State President Dr. John Pfau.

Brown ordered the cuts in an attempt to avoid a constitutionally prohibited state deficit.

Four percent problem

Although the state mandate is two percent, 'in reality, it's closer to four percent,' Pfau said. 'The mandate is to cut two percent of a 12-month budget which began in July. So what we have to actually cut for the remaining eight months of the fiscal year is closer to four percent.'

The Administration Council decided Oct. 12 to immediately freeze hiring of state employees, including student assistants, as well as purchases of equipment and contracts for services. The Council took its action in anticipation of expected cost reductions the college will be expected to implement here. A California State University and Colleges (CSUC) systemwide freeze has also been imposed in these areas.

We don't know yet

The actual amounts of cuts at each campus will be determined by the Chancellor's Office, according to Pfau. At this time what other reductions will be needed are not known. Possibilities which have been raised include fee increases, cuts in the number of classes offered or a ceiling on enrollment. Pfau pointed out that no plans have been made to take any of these actions.

The hiring freeze does not affect the work-study program, which relies mostly on federal funding; nor does it affect the Associated Students or the Foundation, because neither rely directly on funding from the state.

Five percent next year

In addition to the two percent cuts for this fiscal year, Brown has asked the Chancellor's Office to trim five percent from the proposed budget for 1982-83. This translates to a $50 million cut systemwide, according to Chancellor's Office Budget Planner Lou Messner. To meet this reduction the Chancellor's Office plans to recommend to the Board of Trustees that either 20,000 students be denied access to CSUC in the 1982-83 school year, or that the Board of Trustees impose a fee increase of $175-200.

Both Pfau and Associate Dean of Students Dr. Doyle Stansel said that Proposition 13 was at least partially to blame for the current fiscal squeeze. Pfau added that the state is already receiving less revenue than projected for the fiscal year which began July 1.

Less non-residents

Revenue has also gone down in the CSUC system, due to a significant drop in the number of non-residents. Pfau explained there were two reasons for the drop in the number of non-resident students. 'A law went into effect this year to change the residency requirement. The law now reads that if a parent had claimed a student as a tax exemption within the last three years, the student is regarded as a resident of the state of the parents,' Pfau said.

Non-resident tuition fees were also raised from $2200 to $2800 this fall. The drop in the number of non-resident students had no major effect at Cal State, Pfau added.

How will the cuts affect the students? 'California has a long history of protecting its college students,' Pfau said. 'I hope this will continue.'

It's just his idea of how to do the state's public college students a good turn.

Reagan shows his true colors

By Rick Ergang
'Keep Climbin'

Disabled persons throughout the nation are learning firsthand the true nature of President Reagan.

The September '81 issue of 'Up Front: The Newspaper for Handicapped and Disabled Persons' reported the effects the Reagan budget cuts are having on disabled persons. First to go is the U.S. Architectural and Transportation Barriers Compliance Board. The American Coalition of Citizens with Disabilities in a statement to 'Up Front' said 'access to public buildings for handicapped citizens will become a lost dream.' Reese Robrahn, ACCD executive director, points out that President Reagan had a pre-election pledge of an 'accessible America' and goes on to say, 'this shocking disparity of promise and deed by our president is bad news for all citizens, handicapped or not.'

Some other changes in Reagan policies include the deletion of existing Department of Transportation regulations which required mass-transit systems to become accessible to handicapped persons. Other changes include modifications in the food stamp program such that many physically and mentally handicapped people will fall increasingly behind the inflation rate as they work to feed themselves in the coming years. Other proposed cuts are in Social Security Income for the disabled.

Will the Reagan budget cuts affect the physically challenged on the Cal State San Bernardino campus? For the answer I went to Dr. Theron Pace, director of Services to Students with Disabilities (SSD) here. Dr. Pace informed me that for this academic year there will be no cutbacks in services to the disabled; in fact there will be an expansion of services as needed. While the Reagan budget cuts will affect public transportation, Dr. Pace views the effects of these cuts as equal for disabled and non-disabled students on-campus. California, being a rather innovative state, has standards regarding architectural barriers and transportation that are as high, if not higher than, the previous federal government policies.

While students here may find themselves relatively insulated from the effects of these budget cuts and policy changes, I believe we need to keep in mind the disabled throughout the country who aren't going to be as fortunate in this, the International Year of Disabled Persons.

Assertiveness training

The Counseling Center will be offering a group for students who would like to increase their assertiveness.

The assertiveness group is a systematic learning experience involving instruction in what constitutes assertive behavior, practice in being assertive through role-playing in the group and in actual situations between meetings, and feedback in role-playing via videotape and from other group members.

In other words, the group will work on the ability to say 'no,' to tell others what's on their minds, to ask for what they want, and to express their feelings.

The training consists of three sessions, beginning Oct. 27. Anyone interested may start by being assertive enough to call 887-7437 or sign up at the Counseling Center, PS-227.

Fall Co-op

The fall book Co-op was a success, according to Associated Students (A.S.) President Pauline Barbour.

Nearly 250 books changed hands during the A.S.-sponsored event, with almost 100 students taking part by leaving their books.

The aim of the Co-op is to provide a less expensive alternative to students seeking textbooks at the beginning of each term. 'Usually, the prices placed on books by students were much lower than those on 'used books' fixed by the Bookstore,' Barbour said. 'In one case, the Bookstore had not received delivery on an important text by the second week of class and the professor sent students to us to buy last year's edition.'

Of course, there are disadvantages as well. There were some problems with new editions being required in class, after the Co-op accepted last year's editions for sale. Students should take care when buying to be sure they have the current edition or that the instructor will accept the old edition, Barbour pointed out.

The way the Co-op works is that students leave their books there with a requested price. Buyers pay cash for the books, and the money is returned to the seller by A.S. Look for announcements about the time and location of the winter Co-op in future issues of the PawPrint.

For seniors, placement time has arrived

Students who have obtained senior status and not registered with the Career Planning and Placement Center are encouraged to do so as soon as possible.

Here's why. They offer a variety of interesting and valuable services to students and alumni, including: job announcement postings (located on the bulletin board just outside the office door), assistance in resume writing, advisement on job interview techniques, career counseling and vocational testing, placement file service, and graduate school reference service. Most of these services are offered to all students regardless of major or class level.

In addition, the Center produces two newsletters: Job News, which lists vacancies in business, industry, government, higher education and counseling; and the Educational Newsletter, which lists vacancies in the teaching profession. Two separate telephone tapes are also available to placement registrants -- one for business, industry and government registrants; and one for educational placement registrants.

The Center also makes arrangements for employers to visit here and conduct job interviews. Appointments are available only to students who are registered with the Placement Center and have a final resume on file. Please sign up for an interview time at least two days before the scheduled campus visit. All students may visit with those recruiters not requiring individual appointments.

Appointments may be scheduled with Vicki Hawkins at SS-116 or by phone at 887-7551.

This month the U.S. Marine Corps will have a recruiter in the Library between 10 a.m. and two p.m. Oct. 27-28, and the Franchise Tax Board will have a representative on-campus available for appointments between 9 a.m.-4 p.m. Oct. 28.

In November and December representatives from the following companies will be available here: Harris Co., Western State University College of Law, Pepperdine University School of Law, California School of Professional Psychology, Burroughs Wellcome Co., Pacific Intermountain Express, Harvard Law School, Connecticut General, Coro Foundation (Fellowship Program -- Internships in Public Affairs), and K-Mart.

Getting Your Degree? CONGRATULATIONS! (got somewhere to go?) Career Placement Registry (CPR) Can Show the Way

If you're a senior, you'll be job hunting soon—and everyone knows how much fun that is. 300 resumes ... saving forever for stamps ... that letter to Dream Corp. you've written 12 times. You're beginning to wonder if you'll ever attract anyone's attention.

Why not let Dream Corp. come to you?

CPR could be the answer. We're an information service that will give over 10,000 employers in 44 countries access to your complete records. (Any idea how much stamps for 10,000 letters would cost?)

Here's how it works: You fill out a short form, listing your career and geographic preferences, your special skills, your GPA. This information is fed into the DIALOG Information Retrieval Service—a system used by businesses large and small, by research firms, accounting and insurance companies, publishers, advertising agencies, international and multinational corporations, most of the Fortune 1,000.

Employers search through computer terminals for a combination of factors, such as your degree, your languages, your extracurricular background, and so on. If you have what they want, you won't have to get their attention.

They'll come to you.

Instant access, instant searching, instant results. All for $8.

Contact your Placement Office for details and student entry forms, or fill in the coupon below.
